

A Daily Dose of Architecture

(Almost) daily architectural musings and imagery from New York City

Thursday, July 19, 2012

Summer Shows

Summer in New York City may be when people skip town (at least on weekends), but flipping through the Brooklyn Rail I came across some shows that look interesting. If anything, these should provide good places in and around NYC to escape from the heat.

Art in Buildings at 125 Maiden Lane, Jun 27 to Oct 20:

[Left: Flock House "Chromasphere" by Mary Mattingly (photo is previous installation at Battery Park City).
Right: "Matrix V" by Erwin Redl, a permanent installation by appointment only.]